Elizabeth Choy was the only woman known to be imprisoned by the Japanese during World War 2.

Born in Sabah, Elizabeth came to Singapore to further her education. Unfortunately, her mother's death in 1931 left her with the responsibility of raising her six siblings. To support their education, Elizabeth sacrificed hers and entered the workforce to earn a living.

During the Japanese Occupation, she secretly provided food, money and medicine to the British prisoners of war. Once these acts were exposed, she was tortured by the Japanese soldiers. Enduring the sufferings, Elizabeth was determined not to divulge the names of any of the people she had helped. After being starved for 200 days, Elizabeth was finally released from prison.

"Do you know that leather has served different purposes since prehistoric times? It was originally used to meet Man's basic needs of clothing and shelter. Subsequently, its use broadened to include making furniture, shields and even fashionable jackets. In recent times, leather appears to be the popular choice for items such as belts and bags. Although leather items tend to be expensive, they are extremely durable, easy to clean and elegant."

Please note that the passage for Comprehension questions 49 to 54 is on the next page. You may now go on to Booklet B.

Refer to the passage below when you answer questions 49 to 54 in Booklet B.

Finally, we stepped through the gates of Universal Studios. A troop of mascots caught our attention as they paraded down the main street. My sister, Nora, and I immediately tried to rush forward to take photographs with them. However, the scorching heat disturbed my parents. They gently pushed Nora and me away from the mascots. Sulking, we complained continuously that we should not miss any of the rides since we were not allowed to watch the other shows and parades earlier on. My parents grudgingly agreed to our demands. Whooping in unison, Nora and I literally dragged them to the ride we had heard so much about – the Battlestar Galactica. 5

Once the long and twisting tracks came into eyeshot, my mother's face became as white as a sheet. I thought I heard my father let out a sigh of despair and threw my mother a nervous glance. With anxiety written all over her face, my mother quickly clutched her bag and mumbled, "It's best that I stay on the ground to protect all our belongings, while your father goes along with you on this ride." 10

My sister and I wasted no time in pleading with both our parents to go with us. This caused a look of distress on their faces, which we chose to ignore. We were both excited yet terrified. Thus, we both needed a parent to flank us on each of our sides. In addition, we longed for the family photograph that would be snapped after the ride. Furthermore, there were lockers that we could safekeep our bags in. Having said our piece, we dragged them to the lockers ahead of us. 15

Once seated, my mother tried to question the safety measures for the ride. Suddenly, before she could say another word, the harness was lowered on us. We heard a loud squeal from my mother. Before the ride, my father had squeezed my mother's hand reassuringly and shouted words of encouragement to my sister and me. The moment the jerky ride started, he stared wide-eyed with his thin lips turning pale in fear. 20

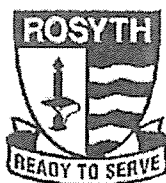

With that image in my mind, the train then leaned forward. Soon, we were twisted, turned and flipped like rag dolls. My mother's screams were now a continuous shrill. Feeling dizzy from the loops and free falls, I too joined her in screaming. Although the situation was comical as we were the only two women screaming, it was thrilling as I experienced a joy of liberation. 25

When we finally got off the ride, my mother's hair was nothing close to her neat expectations. My father tried to hide his unsteady gait. Speechless, we staggered to the exit. The sight awaiting us at the counter was the last straw. The camera had captured us in strange angles. My father looked like he had sniffed something rotting and my mother's hair was in a mess, beyond recognition. Nora's face was in a grimace while I looked like I had a dislocated lower jaw. Staring at the picture, we broke out in chortles. 35

A tender moment surrounded us. My parents had overcome their fear to join us for the ride. My heart swelled with appreciation. I hugged them in a tight embrace; Suddenly, my sister followed suit.

The photograph that we purchased still sits on our coffee table today. It does not only speak of a memorable family outing, but it also marked the beginning of a more open relationship with our remarkable parents. 40

Social distancing was the buzz word during the Covid-19 outbreak two years ago. However, this did not dampen community spirit among Singaporeans. _____ (21)

providing free masks to cooking meals, _____ acts of kindness brought out the extraordinary qualities of Singaporeans. (22)

One such couple _____ chicken rice stall owner Mr. Daniel Tan and his wife. They decided to deliver free meals to healthcare workers as “an encouragement of love”. Mr. Tan and his wife started an online campaign called ‘Cheer Up’ on _____ Facebook page, requesting funds to deliver packets of chicken rice from their Ang Mo Kio stall to hospital staff. The public response was overwhelming (24)

_____ the campaign went viral. As a result, the couple managed to raise enough money to cover the cost of the meals they delivered. (25)

To show their support for our healthcare workers, many restaurants also whipped up either lunch _____ dinner treats. During _____ times of difficulty, it was inspiring to be able to witness the community come together. Although the Covid-19 situation brought the nation to a standstill at that time, the young and old were able to take _____ the challenge and overcome the unexpected situation. This has certainly allowed Singaporeans to emerge stronger. (26) (27) (28)

I have a big family: a brother, Scott, two sisters, Kim and Shania, and our parents. Everybody in the family have taken or is currently taking piano lessons.

(30)
Amongst all of us, Kim is the ekceptionel one, because she is an excellent pianist.

(31)
She has no difficulties playing all the complicated notes. She practises frekwently, for at least four hours a day. She always joins in when one of us is playing a piano, to give us the encouragement and moral support. Initially, Kim faced her own challenges. When she was seven, Kim injured her index finger in an unfortunate accident. As a result, Kim could only use her four fingers on her right hand to play the piano. Therefore, she had to rehearsed twice as much as the rest of us. I cannot imagine what it must have been like for her. Not only is it difficult to play the piano with only four fingers but it is also frustrated not to be able to reach some of the keys on the piano easily. Despite this challenge, Kim displayed peservearence.

(32)

(33)

(35)

She has never felt embareded or compared herself to us. I am grateful to have such a lovely sister who reminds the rest of us never to give up!

An 18-year-old teen went on a hike and returned home as a hero. His quick actions saved a hiker _____ need. Squaw Peak, a mountain in the United States, is only about 800 metres high. _____<sup>(37)</sup>, its steep and slippery cliffs have resulted in countless injuries and even deaths.<sup>(38)</sup>

One sunny morning, in 2019, Henry Grant was climbing the mountain _____ his mother. There were other tourists ascending the mountain too.<sup>(39)</sup> When Henry was about 3 metres from the edge and waiting for his mother to catch _____ with him, he suddenly heard a loud 'thump'. "Help!" someone<sup>(40)</sup> screamed.

Once he had assured his mother that he would be safe, Henry trekked off the trail, hoping he could lend a hand. After 15 minutes of scrambling over boulders and slipping down patches of loose dirt, Henry spotted a figure in a distance – dressed in bright pink. A woman was crumpled in a kneeling _____ on a small rocky ground. She<sup>(41)</sup> had fallen about 22 metres. He moved closer and heaved a sigh of relief when he spotted her conscious. Henry immediately called for the emergency service to report the incident.

Unfortunately, the woman had landed in a dangerous spot. _____<sup>(42)</sup> she moved, she started to slip a little more. Afraid that she might tumble off the rocky surface, Henry crawled on all fours up a tight, narrow path. He maintained his grip by digging into the dirt with his fingers and feet, trying to reach her.

Securing himself against a tree, Henry gently held onto her hand. He tried to _____ the woman's mind off the pain from her injuries, by distracting her<sup>(43)</sup> with questions. He kept doing this until he was joined by _____ hiker,<sup>(44)</sup> Simon, who also kept reassuring her that she would be fine. Eventually, a rescue team arrived by helicopter to bring the woman to the hospital, much to the relief of both the hikers.
